

Discrimination Against the Environment.

Isaac Newton.

Discussion Group April 2007

Seldom do you hear the words, discrimination against the environment, well now let us speak of this. What it means to discriminate against anyone, of any race, religion, or belief system. What does it say of people that discrimination is still allowed to flourish at all, and it is still rife, still rearing its ugly head? What I wish to draw your attention to is your ability to discriminate based upon a lack of understanding. Shall we then discuss at a quantified speed what you believe to be discrimination? For it is a subject truly worthy of recognition. As ignorance breeds intolerance and closed minds, so too does discrimination take many many forms. One all but overlooked, because the prey, the victim is silent and cannot talk and defend herself, or can she? We see discrimination against the earth you call home greatly mystifying, because you as humanity propel yourselves forward, stripping away at the Earth's resources, for this is how she is seen, not as a life form so very complex as to be honored. No what we observe is the avoidance of an honour system, that you have to justify what actions are taken towards strip mining and mining of resources. It is seen that mining resources are humanities right, the Earth there for all of humanity to utilize and plunder, and because she cannot speak for herself. She is then forced to retaliate with the only means possible of self defense. ( climate change.) Do you see ignorance is not bliss; you cannot take constantly from and violate the Earth, without forming a debt, which must be paid. Many individuals give their lives to preservation of species and study, with great wonder and respect for the Earth's great complexities I too studied, and held the earth and creation in a place of great honour. I too saw laws and principles of nature and how to harness these to better understand where and when energies flowed. I counseled others about the law of relativity and provided papers of scientific matters and the structure of these laws, but I did not ever, ever see what the results of my labor would help to bring about. To investigate, to learn and study and incorporate these beliefs and studies for the betterment of humanity was my need, yes investiture of energies into research and exploration of resources is necessary to a point, but what began as initial scientific studies has blown our of hand. No longer is the Earth, Nature valued, she is summoned to the table only when you see climate change, earthquakes, tsunamis, tornadoes, hurricanes and tempests as getting out of hand, science can be used to aid humanity, no denying this. Environmental sciences can aid the understanding of the Earth and her complexities, but from my viewpoint can I say be very very careful, lest you break the back of the environmental code of ethics. Look at this universe as alive and gathering in wonder. This is God's infinite creation, a creation so complex, so interrelated as to be a wonder to behold, but she being Mother, Earth, has to be considered as a living breathing soul she is. She is alive, would you thoughtlessly dig deep into the flesh of your mother, would you kill countless mammals, environmentally necessary creatures and bring them to extinction because you need to fill your days thoughtlessly, and not have a thought that all has to be paid for somewhere. All life is valuable, from the smallest organisms, to the greatest of size, all wonders of the creator. Would you threaten to kill or maim your own mother? Do you consider what you are doing by your complacency and not supporting an ethical approach to the Earth? What began as simple explorations of resources has become a race for riches, intensivfied interest in which country has the most resources for it rules the world.

But you do not understand you too suffer as a result of such greed. My words today speak to each individual. Yes you must live, but how do you possibly live, how do you simplify your life to cause the least debt which must be paid, and all energies flow and are converted into another form, but there is a difference between taking only what is needed and sustainable, and taking all you can for massive profits: Oil exploration affects all of you. Fossil fuels affect all of you. What have you personally given up to aid the Earth in her plight? I came before at a time in history when knowledge was repressed, when discrimination and close mindedness towards anyone not holding the same opinion brought great pain and sometimes death to utter truth. Let me share this truth with you now. You each and every one of you have the opportunity to become living examples of life honored by your actions. You each carry a light of understanding to open the consciousness of humanity just as I did in my time. You have the opportunity to shift mindsets, to challenge and make your life count. I am Isaac Newton I do grant that my observations brought many people great pain because they couldn't understand or see that the world was bigger, more wonderful and complex as it is, and those ruling at the time, church authorities thought to impose harsh restrictions just to keep a position, one not powerful and open but closed and fundamentally destructive. I suffered for my beliefs, but I do not want you to suffer for your blind ignorance and your lack of concern for the Earth. Energy converts and all forces of life convert other energies to exist so the premise goes, but what is not understood is the severity of those implications of actions. Taking energy and converting it with a sense of honoring brings a softer flow, and there becomes a natural flowing, but when honor is left aside for greed discipline goes out the door. When industrialists, scientists, politicians and the general community, all choose to overlook the fact that greed is the motivating force, and Earth is set into a depleted state, then the debt will be paid. Right action speaks of taking from the Earth only that which is needed. Some would say that God placed all at the disposal of mankind. No! Entirely wrong from my vantage point now I see this as important to get across. There is no justification for industries pouring effluent and toxins into river systems to achieve a larger profit. It is not justified to place the Earth at risk by depositing atomic waste in underground storage areas, and into the oceans which will affect Earth's inner energy flows. This is crunch time; Lord Melchizedek has spoken of the environmental implications of heavily fortified areas where depletion of resources now takes its toll. In this discussion group I am calling you to arms to aid, to call to order the consciousness of all humanity now. Beginning with the self look at how your actions impact upon the Earth, and remember karmic lessons are not just for individuals, nations also accrue karmic debt and areas of heavy energy where negativity and imbalance bring about rapid changes. (environmental disasters) Within this discussion group you have the opportunity to offset some of this debt by together working on lifting the conscious of humanity and this website also works to this end, hence our supporting you at this time. What we seek is a commitment from you that you will bring about global awareness of the plight of the Earth. Never before conditions have deteriorated to the point that recompense cannot be made, we ask of you a general consensus that you will employ every ounce of your energy and essence to convert this into positive energies to aid the whole, but specifically Earth. How can you help? For a start form a global alliance group where all of you write, send your views to politicians, to engage every effort to avoid further damage: to highlight ways others can help support groups and link energies. Website; advertise events which support the Earth and create a lobby so strong governments must listen. Lobby governments. Some of you may say, "but I can't write letters or I can't see how my efforts, my energies could help." Let me say this that you will, simply by committing yourself body and soul to this global awareness. It is a great moment for all when you can say as one "I did my best, I made my life count for something bigger". We ask this of you now as a gift of love and commitment as co creators of your reality, a spoken word, a verbal and energetic commitment. Remember the words "walk softly upon the Earth and leave no footprints". Indian nations and native peoples all knew the wisdom of these words. "Take only that which you need." Well the footprints of humanity now dig deep and hold a foul energy within that implodes on itself. The following are questions for this discussion Group. Is the world a better place for me being here? Do my footprints leave a mark upon the Earth? Can I change my own personal consumption of resources? How have I altered the thinking of others in relation to environmental affairs? If challenged about jobs or the environment what would I say? If given a time limit to change the world what would I do, and in what order? How do I at the end of my life stand in relation to my being aware of the world and my part in it? So the key is this, simplify. Speak words of truth and prepare the way I thank you,
