"Love" Discussion Group 1/06/2006

( Discussion with VRC for group.)

Advantages come from the vast amount of knowledge gained by pooling resources, and that knowledge gained can and will be held and given power over time. Three of you now have tasks given, and as time goes on more will come.

What we ask is this, that you speak tonight about the aspects of religion, and other belief systems which do not come from love - negative perhaps, but if knowledge is to be gained on how to formulate a new simple mass consciousness, then all aspects need to be approached.

Look at religions and belief systems, and discuss what in your eyes is negative about them, not with a view to criticise, but more to formulate a way of thinking which can preclude any negative influence. Look at the nature of mankinds development. See what it is which necessitates holding power, and how this is achieved through religious dogma or cult heroes.

In other words seek out the truth which is perceived differently by each person, and it's why we ask each and every one of you to really look at this aspect, and see how this can be done, with intent to find and write down what by necessity needs to be left out of your final submissions. It's important this be done quickly, this aspect. It's also important that each one will have an important part to play. That is the first half.

Then after a break, speak out about the positives, and why we do this, in this order is to leave the positives as a final thought process which then lingers on in the mind.

Kim will note this down for you, and if you have time to then engage in conversations about the real structure of belief systems and how they operate, and what it is that generates and then perpetuates a belief system.

What drives this belief to continue?

What is it that propels it into the future, and how does this relate to lives lived now?

How can modern men and women formulate a new belief system completely free from contamination which has influenced past generations.....mankinds need for power?

Or is it a fear of the freedom and differences which would eventuate if all were empowered to think for themselves?

There is much goodness which lasts and is perpetuated also, never loose sight of that, but the most profoundly important movement to come about in time, is that ability to be free from fear....of others thinking independently....fear from growth.....conformity, safety in numbers. Strengthening the bonds which bind all together is often the problem.

This discussion group is a problem solving group of individuals, all valued because of their unique flavour, interests, beliefs and it is the richness of these differences which will improve the brew you come up with at the end.

Belief systems all start somewhere, and perpetuated by what?

How do you then set out a new belief system which will explode that safe bubble that seals in thoughts from before....conformity, or not wanting to rock this boat?

Analyze what motivates people to be sheep and follow on behind a leader and then the next leader, and in the process allow distortions and personality traits to influence the whole. What we are suggesting is this, that each one of you speaks about these issues and not just one person. It is in the rich brew of beliefs and understandings that the truth lies. It isn't in the system where all are dictated to and then replicate for others.

Simplicity of love is so very easy once all the misconceptions are removed. There is a wealth of knowledge you all have combined.

A challenge exists to find the essence of truth, of love, that all belief systems have an element of, the original concepts given to an enlightened one. The problem being that every extension thereafter adds their own perceptions of the truth and is corrupted, and I can tell you no religion exists now as in the original concept given by God originally.

So your challenge is simple, find the truth buried in the mire of belief systems.

Extract the essence, and as an alchemist does, burn off the dross and reveal the infinite beauty.

This is the start, and with time it will gain power and momentum, and this group gathering will be further propelled forward by each one of you bringing one extra person with you.

This is the original Grail Quest.....to find the essence of truth, of divine inspiration given in symbolism to the original enlightened ones, and matching those unique symbols in language all can understand and feel comfortable with, therein lies the treasure.

The treasure map you all have within you, all have a part, and just need to find it yourself.

Bless you in this trial by combat with your own beliefs. Sort out that which is man made and find balance again, for this is truly which is lost - balance.
